

Quantum EHS Corporate Policy

Quantum Group, LLC, a prominent family-owned firm headquartered in Miami, Florida, is dedicated to the highest Environment, Health, and Safety (EHS) standards, as stated in this Quantum Corporate Policy.

Quantum is dedicated to developing a strong EHS culture and values that will benefit our employees, customers, suppliers, community, and environment in the long term.

1 Leadership & Training

Training, sharing knowledge, lessons learned, and best practices within the organization are crucial for continuous improvement of our EHS performance. We urge our staff to look for methods to make our workplace, goods, and the processes we employ more environmentally friendly. We encourage and motivate every employee to take ownership of their area of responsibility, integrating EHS issues and awareness into business decisions and daily work.

2 Guidelines & Procedures

We hold ourselves accountable by verifying and reporting our performance on a regular basis. Our management systems ensure that our processes and activities comply with all relevant regulatory obligations as well as our own company standards and policies.

3 Processes

To ensure reliable processes along the whole value chain of our products and services, we maintain effective management systems in accordance with international normative standards.

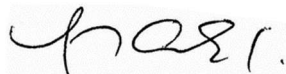

3 Responsibility

To be a valuable, dependable, and responsible partner for our workers, customers, and the general public, we adhere to statutory and regulatory requirements. We impose higher standards if despite legal and regulatory requirements, our EHS principles are threaten. We actively engage our business partners and suppliers in our quest for a safe working environment.

By using this systemic framework, we measure and review EHS indicators transparently, derive actions and enforce EHS management strategies to ensure continual improvement, and support the Quantum businesses in a sustainable manner.
